

TCW

TODAY'S CHICAGO WOMAN

MARCH 2004 • WWW.TCWMAG.COM

Amanda Puck reports
CHEF'S CHOICE
WHERE THEY EAT
WHAT THEY ORDER

NOT FOR WIMPS
CARDIO YOGA
Improves Heartrate, Trims Inches,
Reduces Cellulite, Boosts Memory

HOME
DECOR 37
GREAT QUICK FIXES

MARIA PAPPAS She's rich, she's pretty, she has a hot husband
SO WHY IS SHE SO SERIOUS ABOUT POLITICS?

Wardrobe Wonder

Jennifer Oppenheimer

IF YOU'RE ONE of those people with a closet overflowing with shoes and clothes, yet still maintain you have nothing to wear, then you might want to call Jennifer Oppenheimer. Jennifer is the brains behind In The Closet, a business she began to help anyone in the throes of a couture crisis.

Her agenda is to maximize the utility of each garment, help you understand what staples are necessary for a well-rounded wardrobe and teach you how to avoid trendy looks while developing and nurturing a fashion sense and your own sense of style.

Jennifer found her calling and the idea behind In The Closet while working in public relations at Fleishman-Hillard and then Hill and Knowlton; essentially, she was looking for a way out of her current job so that she could focus on fashion full-time.

"I always loved playing dress-up as a kid. I would help my mom get dressed and I just had a knack for putting her outfits together," says Jennifer.

Once Jennifer is left to her own devices, she'll organize your closet, help you accessorize your wardrobe, show you how to combine vintage pieces with contemporary looks for a customized fashion statement and even sell discarded clothes to consignment shops, putting a little more cash in your wallet.

"I try to do a lot more value-shopping and looking for unique pieces instead of mainstream shopping," she explains. "You don't want to look like everybody else." With Jennifer on your side, chances are you won't. In the Closet, 312.208.8269. ■

By Nina Kutty